

Series V: Covid-19 and Paradigm Shift of International Education

質疑 (Discussion)

Question: Could you share your insights on what might be the new normal once institutions resume classes on campus?

Answer: More on-line instruction; more one to one instruction; greater use of external resources, such as webinars that students can participate in, use of more standardized reference materials available from international, on-line sources. 〈Deane Neubauer〉

More use of ICT not only in education and learning, but also in other activities of universities, such as management and research. Meetings, conferences, seminars are going to be much more operated with on-line. <Kazuo Kuroda>

Question: How do you think of ICT capability gap? Gap between countries, Universities, Students, etc. What impact does it make? To whom does it influence mostly?

Answer: I think it exists but see that it will be rapidly recognized, and resources will be invented and made available quickly to ensure that both faculty and students develop new “comfort levels” working in these circumstances. 〈Deane Neubauer〉
